Moore-ditch?

Falſ. Thou haſt the moſt vnſauory ſmiles, and art indeede the moſt comparatiue raſcalleſt ſweet yong Prince. But Hall, I prethe trouble mee no more with vanity, I would to God thou and I knew where a commodity of good names were to be bought: an old Lord of the Counſell rated mee the other day in the ſtreete about you ſir; but I markt him not, and yet he talkt very wiſely; but I regarded him not, and yet he talkt wiſely, in the ſtreet too.

Prince. Thou didſt well: for Wiſedome cries out in the ſtreets, and no man regardes it.

Falſ. O, thou haſt damnable iteration, and art indeed able to corrupt a Saint: thou haſt done much harme vnto me Hal, God forgiue thee for it: Before I knew thee Hall, I knew nothing, and now am I, If a man ſhould ſpeake truely, little better than one of the wicked; I muſt giue ouer this life; and I wil giue it ouer: By the Lord and I doe not, I am a villaine: Ile be damned for neuer a Kings ſonne in Chriſtendome?

Prince. Where ſhall we take a purſe to morrow, Iacke?

Falſ. Zounds, where thou wilt lad, Ile make one: and I do not, call me villaine, and Baffell me.

Prince. I ſee a good amendment of life in thee; from praying, to Purſe taking.

Falſ. Why, Hall; tis my vocation Hall: tis no ſin for a man to labour in his vocation. Enter Poynes.

Poynns. Now ſhall we know if Gads hill haue ſet a match: O, if men were to bee ſaued by merit, what hole in Hell were hot enough for him? This is the moſt omnipotent Villaine that euer cryed, Stand, to a true man.

Prince. Good morrow Ned.

Poines. Good morrow ſweete Hall. What ſayes Mounſieur Remorſe? What ſayes ſir Iohn Sacke and Sugar, Iacke? How agrees the Diuell and thee about thy ſoule, that thou ſoldeſt him on Good-friday laſt, for a cup of Madera and a cold Capons legge?

Prin. Sir Iohn ſtands to his word, the Diuell ſhall haue his bargaine, for he was neuer a breaker of Prouerbes: hee will giue the Diuell his due.

Poines.

Poines. Then art thou damn'd for keeping thy w
the diuell.

Prince. Elſe he had been damn'd for Coſening the Poy. But my lads, my lads, to morrow morning, by clocke early at Gads hill, there are pilgrims going to C ry with rich offrings, and Traders riding to London

purſes. I haue vizards for you all; you haue horſes ſelues: Gads-hill lies to night in Rocheſter, I haue beſp per to morrow night in Eaſtcheape; we may do it as ſleepe: if you will goe, I will ſtuffe your purſes ful of
if you wil not, tarry at home and be hang'd.

Falſ. Heare ye Yedward, if I tarry at home and g hang you for going.

Poy. You will chops.

Falſ. Hal, wilt thou make one?

Prince. Who, I rob? I a theefe? not I by my faith.

Falſ. Ther's neither honeſty, manhood, nor goo ſhip in thee, nor thou camſt not of the blood royall, dareſt not ſtand for ten ſhillings.

Prince. Well, then once in my daies Ile be a madc

Falſ. Why, thats well ſaid.

Prince. Well, come what will, Ile tarry at home.

Falſ. By the Lord jle be a traitor then, when thou
